New Legislation on Home Inspectors

Many states such as Kansas and Texas have passed new legislation that requires home inspection professionals to become licensed to apply termiticide. That means that home inspectors must now become licensed to inspect for pests. There are companies out there that will help train you or your company in performing pest inspections. Some pest control companies sell franchises to help increase your business.

PestX one of CIA's certified members has offered their services in training and also offers the sale of franchise.
